

review the supplemental information requested during the phone conference and then issue a schedule for deadlines if the Court granted the Plaintiffs' motion for extension. The Court GRANTS the Plaintiffs' extension motion (Doc. 51), contingent on the motion and brief being filed no later than 6:00 PM on September 1, 2017.¹

The briefing schedule is set forth below. No extensions shall be granted. The schedule includes an additional requirement for the parties to file memoranda, not to exceed 6 pages, addressing the equity, public interest, and harm issues posed by the potential grant of injunctive relief in an election context in as highly compressed a time frame as exists in this case. Counsel are directed to include legal authorities from election cases or directly analogous contexts.

Item to be filed	Date to be filed
Plaintiffs' motion for preliminary injunction	September 1, 2017 (no later than 6:00 PM)
Plaintiffs' response to Defendants' original motions to dismiss	September 5, 2017
Defendants' response to Plaintiffs' motion for preliminary injunction	September 7, 2017
Defendants' motions to dismiss Plaintiffs' additional voting privacy claim (not to exceed 5 pages)	September 8, 2017
All parties' filing of a memorandum regarding balancing of equity and harm issues (not to exceed 6 pages) that the Court should consider in connection with the issues posed by implementing a remedy on the heels of an election on a highly compressed time schedule.	September 11, 2017 (no later than 1:00 PM)
Plaintiffs' response to Defendants	September 11, 2017

¹ Plaintiffs withdrew their request for an enlargement of the number of pages for the brief in support of the motion.

motion to dismiss additional voting privacy claims (not to exceed 5 pages)
Defendants' reply supporting their motions to dismiss (for all claims)	September 12, 2017
Plaintiffs' reply in support of motion for preliminary injunction	September 12, 2017

The Court will set a potential hearing date for a preliminary injunction hearing for a date to be determined during the week of September 18, 2017. However, the Court will determine whether such a hearing is appropriate and necessary based on its assessment of the motions and briefs.

IT IS SO ORDERED this 1st date of September, 2017.

Amy Totenberg
United States District Judge